INFANT KING STATUE: Sign up to take home the Pilgrim Infant King statue and pray for vocations! The sign-up sheet is located at the Altar of the Infant King.

WITHOUT DOUBT, one thought that could lighten the sorrow of those suffering souls [in Purgatory] is that their memory is not lost, and that the friends they left on this earth are working to aid and deliver them. Alas, that is a consolation their hearts [more often than not] cherish in vain.

True, it is our custom to show the sorrow we render to their memory; and undoubtedly religion is far from condemning this honor rendered to grief. Rather, indeed, it condemns the hardness of heart of those who have no sooner lost their parents and friends than they cease to remember them. The saints used to mourn their friends, but their greatest concern was to help them. It was not tears that St. Monica asked of St. Augustine, when, on her deathbed, she said to him, "Son, I bid you remember me, each time that you offer the Sacrifice at the Altar." It was not by tears that St. Ambrose sought to mark the deep attachment he felt for the Emperor Theodosius, when he said, "I have loved this prince, and, because I have loved him, I shall not leave him until I have led him into that abode to which his virtues call him. O people, hasten hither and, together with me, bestow upon the remains of this prince the incense of your prayers, the outpourings of your charity, and the grief of your penance."...

Those tears that promised ever to flow soon dry up. Our fickle, selfish hearts grow tired of calling out names that utter no sound in answer; we grow tired of seeking to recall images that have forever vanished from our sight. Caught up in the whirlwind of the world and its frivolities, we shrink from such a grim and painful memory. Severance is followed by oblivion, and the pains of the dead are the most forgotten of all pains. Poor deceased! After a few days spent in grief and mourning, a few courtesies paid to etiquette and convention, you will be buried once more in a tomb, crueler and colder than the one in which you were first laid; and that second tomb will be oblivion...

Ah, they would say, have pity on us, you who were our friends. Break our fetters, save us, deliver us...There is another thing the dead say to us: you are mistaken about our desires, and the kind of relief our pains demand; you thought you were showing us your sorrow and love by arranging a magnificent funeral. On the spot of our last abode you have erected monuments, which are not so much tributes to our memory as a gratification of your pride. What is the purpose of all this ostentation and splendor?...

That is what the dead ask of us; and, if we listen to them, truly, I tell you, our charity will be blessed. The dead will not be thankless. One day, freed from their torments by our solicitude, they will help us by their powerful intercession, and, when we fly up toward the heavenly fatherland, they will accompany us in procession; they will sing around us the hymn of thanksgiving, and increase the joy of everlasting bliss that will be our reward and our glory.

"Reading this book was one of the great graces of my life"
-St. Theresa of the Infant Jesus

Reading about and meditating on the Four Last Things (Death, Judgment, Heaven and Hell) helped our Little Flower gain a deeper understanding of the importance of the spiritual life and how charity can aid us in our pursuit of a closer union with God.

Deepen your understanding and celebration of this beloved season, and prepare your hearts for the arrival of the Christ Child, as Dr. Brant Pitre unpacks the mystery of the Birth of Our Lord through its Jewish roots. Learn what the manger reveals about His identity; who the Magi were and how they knew to follow a star to the Newborn Jewish King; what Christian tradition reveals about the kind of star they followed; the real reason we celebrate Christmas on December 25; and more!

It is a holy and wholesome thought to pray for the dead, that they may be loosed from sins.
2 Maccabees 12: 46

O God, the bestower of pardon and lover of man's salvation, we beseech Thy clemency, through the intercession of blessed Mary, ever a virgin, and all Thy saints, that the brethren, kindred, and benefactors of our congregation who have passed out of this world may together enjoy everlasting happiness. Through our Lord Jesus Christ, Thy Son, Who lives and reigns with Thee in the unity of the Holy Spirit, God, forever and ever.

Most Forgotten Souls & All Lonely Souls

Eternal Rest Grant Unto Them, O Lord

GOD WARNS US of the transience of our earthly existence and invites us to live it as a pilgrimage, keeping our gaze fixed on the destination for which God has created us. Moreover, since he made us for himself (cf. St Augustine, Confessions 1, 1), he is our ultimate destination and the meaning of our existence.

Death, followed by the Last Judgement, is an obligatory stage to pass through in order to reach this definitive reality. The Apostle Paul says: "the day of the Lord will come like a thief in the night" (1 Thess 5:2), that is, without warning. May knowledge of the glorious return of the Lord Jesus spur us to live in an attitude of watchfulness...

In the well-known Parable of the Talents...two of [the servants] behaved impeccably, doubling the value of what they had received. On the contrary, the third buried the money he had received in a hole. On his return, the master asked his servants to account for what he had entrusted to them and while he was pleased with the first two he was disappointed with the third.

Indeed, the servant who had hidden his talent and failed to make it increase in worth, had calculated badly. He behaved as if his master were never to return, as if there would never be a day on which he would be asked to account for his actions. With this parable, Jesus wanted to teach his disciples to make good use of his gifts: God calls every person and offers talents to all, at the same time entrusting each one with a mission to carry out. It would be foolish to presume that these gifts are an entitlement, just as failing to use them would mean failing to achieve our purpose in life.

In commenting on this Gospel passage, St. Gregory the Great noted that the Lord does not let anyone lack the gift of his charity, of his love. He wrote: "Brothers, it is necessary that you pay the utmost attention to preserving love in everything you must do" (Homilies on the Gospel, 9, 6). After explaining that true charity consists in loving enemies as well as friends, he added: "If someone lacks this virtue, he loses every good he possesses, he is deprived of the talent he received and is cast out into the darkness" (ibid.).

from an Angelus of Pope Benedict XVI, November 13, 2011

Mission CUBA FOOD DRIVE

Bringing Christ to the Cuban people, helping rebuild the Church, and sowing hope

Our St. Martin Society partnered with the Missionaries of the Community of St. Martin in Cuba to help provide medications. They were so grateful! We are currently having a food drive to collect canned goods for the missions in time for Christmas. Below is a list of some items they need:

- Cooking oil
- Powdered milk
- White rice
- Sugar
- Spaghetti or other types of pasta
- Canned meat
- Canned fish (all varieties)
- Bags of beans
- Coffee
- Canned tomatoes
- Canned fruit
- Canned vegetables
- Chocolates or candy for children

Cuban elderly woman searches for food in a garbage container in Havana.

The comedores or soup kitchens initiative of the Community of St. Martin arose from a simple observation: in the Cuban villages and neighborhoods, many elderly, sick, or lonely people find themselves without sufficient resources to feed themselves properly. The Mission therefore decided to organize, parish by parish, places where meals are prepared and distributed. Gradually, six comedores emerged, each adapted to local realities. Some operate several times a week, others only once, depending on available resources. Everywhere, however, the principle is the same: to carefully prepare food for those who have nothing.

Each week, approximately 250 meals are prepared and distributed: some are taken home by those receiving them, while others are delivered directly to the most isolated, who no longer have the strength to travel. These simple but nourishing meals not only help combat malnutrition, exacerbated by the economic crisis and chronic shortages, but also help rebuild a sense of community. Around these tables, volunteers offer their time, their smiles, and their listening ear: often, it is the only visit and the only moment of conviviality these elderly or sick people experience during the week. The comedores are made possible thanks to donations received and the commitment of parishioners. In a country where the State can no longer meet the basic needs of its population, they demonstrate the concrete face of a Church which, following Christ, chooses to serve the smallest and the poorest.
